

From Edison To YOU! EDISON'S NEW DIAMOND AMBEROLA

The World's Greatest
Phonograph Value

THINK of the vast difference between Edison's Amberola and ordinary phonographs or "talking machines". The Amberola is the product of matchless inventive genius—of inspiration. Other phonographs are plain, factory-made machines, devoid of inspiration.

Thomas A. Edison's master mind conceived the Amberola to entertain mankind. Commercial phonographs are put together with just one object in view—to sell at so much profit.

No wonder the Amberola has demonstrated its superiority time and again in public comparative tests with "talking machines" and commercial phonographs.

The marvelous tone of the Amberola—the permanent, genuine Diamond Point Reproduction (no needles to change)—the practically unbreakable, everlasting Amberol Records—all reveal the genius of Edison. And the surprising, low cost of the Amberola puts high-priced "talking machines" and commercial phonographs to shame.

Let us show you how easy it is for anyone to own an Amberola. Call at our store or write to us in the next few days. Even if you are convinced you cannot afford an Amberola, put it up to us to make it possible. So remember—call or write—soon.

TEACHERS TO MEET AT EDMONTON ON NOVEMBER 4-5-6

Northern Alberta Association
Will Hold Twenty-Third
Annual Convention

The twenty-third annual convention of the Northern Alberta Teachers' association will be held at Edmonton on Thursday and Friday, November 4 and 5. It is expected that about 700 teachers will be in attendance, and owing to the difficulty of accommodating this number in the past the committee in charge has reluctantly decided to transfer all general sessions from the Separate high school to the First Presbyterian church. The special evening function will be held in Convocation Hall, University of Alberta, while the individual sections will meet in schools close to the centre of the city.

The executive has prepared what is believed to be an unusually interesting program. Prof. Malcolm Wallace, of Toronto University, will be the principal speaker. This is the first time the local organization has gone so far afield for a speaker but Prof. Wallace has a reputation as a brilliant lecturer, and it is felt that the association is making no mistake in bringing him from the east. In addition to Prof. Wallace's addresses, there will be three other addresses in open session. President Newland has chosen an original topic, "The Slave Mind," while Mr. J. Morgan, supervisor of work among new Canadians will tell what the department of Education is doing to educate our foreign population. J. W. Barnett, provincial organizer for the Alberta Teachers' Alliance will also speak to the teachers along the line of alliance. The topics for discussion in the high school are "The Relation of Silent Reading to Efficiency in Study," by G. Fred McNally, head of the Edmonton Normal school, and a Round Table Discussion on the High School Curriculum, led by C. O. Hicks, E. L. Luck, C. F. Edwards, L. Roxburgh and J. P. Page.

In the senior public school section, E. M. Beckwith and Capt. H. Kennedy will speak on "Play—an Educational Factor," while H. D. Ainley will discuss the much debated question of "Promotion by Recommendation." J. Norman, Eagleston, supervisor of music, will also address the teachers on the teaching of music in the schools. In the intermediate public school section Miss D. A. Dickie, will speak on "Composition for Grades IV, V and VI," Miss Miss Patton, who is well known for her brilliant work in connection with school gardens, will speak on "Nature Study for Grade V."

The primary section will be well looked after by the following speakers: Miss Valerie Phaneuf who will give a talk on Musical Games and illustrate her talk by a class demonstration; Miss E. M. Burnett, of Camrose Normal school, who will speak on "Some of the Newer Phases of Education," and city inspector M. E. LaZerte, who will discuss the supervision of Reading.

The rural teachers will be especially fortunate in having the privilege of listening to James McGill, of the department of agriculture, who will discuss Rural School Courses of Study and J. D. Hunt, clerk of the executive council, who will speak on "The Ideal of Education." Mr. Hunt is well known for his advanced views on training for citizenship and his address is sure to be followed with a great deal of interest.

The members of the executive are as follows: President, H. C. Newland; second vice-president, W. D. Benn; third vice-president, Miss S. Jean Walker; third vice-president, Charles King; secretary, J. P. Page, Chairman of Sections: High School, Geo. Misener; Senior Public School, W. H. Todd; Intermediate Public School, Mrs. Rose; Primary, Miss F. Spackman; Industrial, T. E. Hughes, Rural, Miss Mary Bell.

YOU NEED MUSIC IN YOUR HOME!

The possibilities of the phonograph or gramophone as an entertainer are unlimited.

Just stop and consider for a moment what pleasure it will bring you when one is in your home. If the evening is dull, put on a snappy band record and watch the effect on your family. Faces brighten up, feet unconsciously beat time and everyone's spirits are raised.

Then put on a good old song song, "Silver Threads Among the Gold." Watch the shadows of emotion flit over the faces of your family. Hear Grandmother say, "I used to sing that song when I was a little girl."

Then a comic record; hear them all laugh! Think of it! Broadway vaudeville right in your home. Before you realize it, the evening slips by and you retire with the memory of a pleasant evening spent instead of a dull, flat one.

Just realize this! You can do this, day in and day out, for 365 days in the year. If you have children in your home, you realize the hard task you have keeping them contented and satisfied. Being young, full of activity and youthful spirits, they are constantly demanding entertainment and fun. If they cannot get it in their homes, they will go elsewhere. You naturally do not wish yours to do this. Buy them a machine and watch the magic effect it will have on them. You will find they soon will become contented and happy.

There are hundreds of other ways one can be used to bring pleasure and happiness to your home. When guests come to see you and the conversation grows dull, just bring out the machine and put on a good record. One record suggests another, and before you realize it, you are having a good time. Truly it is the kind of entertainers. When your help get dissatisfied from lack of entertainment and activities, just lend them it for the evening. Watch them fill up their pipes, tilt their chairs back and settle down to be entertained if they have a good one. Rainy days in the house are hard for the little ones. Get them one, and they will soon forget the rain. When the long winter nights set in and you are confined to the house continually, start a big fire in the grate, put on a good record and prepare to enjoy yourself. Vary your program first a string march may be one of Sousa's, then an exquisite violin solo, then a ballad, or the latest Broadway hit, then a comic record, one of the famous "Uncle Josh Records" laugh until your sides ache. Then as a contrast a beautiful "heart song" such as "A Perfect Day." It will soon be bedtime and you can all retire with the memory of a pleasant evening.

COSTUMES OF STAR IN "THE RED LANTERN" ARE WORTH A FORTUNE

Robes of regal splendor are worn by Nazimova in her newest superfeature, "The Red Lantern," which comes to the Elite Theatre on Friday and Saturday next. Among these robes is the heavy silken garb of the Goddess of the Red Lantern and the awe-inspiring habiliments of a Chinese warrior chief.

For Mahlee, the half Chinese, half English girl, played by Nazimova, bears a not remote resemblance to France's Joan of Arc. True, she leads a hopeless cause that of the Boxers against the European in China. Her heart is torn between the love she bears for an Englishman and the ancient traditions of the yellow race.

Nazimova wears the warrior's costume during the tumultuous scenes in the streets of Peking, when the Boxers clash with the troops of the Allied nations sent to quell the up-rising. Mounted, as was the immortal Jeanne d'Arc, Mahlee leads the yellow hordes against their white foes until all hope is gone. Then, with the stoicism of the oriental blood, she seeks death by her own hand in the throne room of the Emperor's Palace.

The Warrior's costume, a striking robe of embroidered silk, with the head of a lion depending from the waist, is anorel worn only by those of the Chinese who stand ready to give their lives for the race. The lion's head is the highest symbol of valor at arms.

The robes are of the heaviest Chinese silk embroidered with a thousand designs. On her head Nazimova wears the symbolical headress of the Goddess, studded with peacock feathers and dozens of silk floss pom-poms—the whole held in place by a band of gold embroidery that circles the forehead and temples.

THE SEEING EYE

Principal Reynolds of the Ontario Agricultural College thus delivers himself in the Agricultural Gazette of Canada.

The teacher who hopes to take a right place in the life of the country school district must cultivate the seeing eye and understanding heart for persons and things rural. The usual, popular, melodrama, come, appointment, moving picture conception of the farmer, and of country people must be forgotten. It is essentially and perniciously false. The farmer is something of humorist and takes delight in deceiving the simple-minded by a somewhat unfinished exterior. The city-bred person makes the fatal mistake that there is a very great deal of clear, hard thinking done today by the men wearing overalls, of judging by outside appearances. To the city-trained eye there are two classes of persons: one wearing overalls and the other wearing white collars. The former class work with their hands. The latter class work with their brains. This is the superficial judgment, which ignores the facts. At any rate, the farmer belongs to both classes. The more he understands of those discoveries, which it is the business of the college to spread, the better farmer will be.

The Conquest of the Air

An Anglican missionary-clergyman, Rev. W. F. Walton, for many years has devoted his life to the spiritual and temporal welfare of the Eskimos who live on the eastern shores of James Bay. The only white people he sees there are the Hudson's Bay Company officials at widely separated trading posts. To reach civilization entailed a hard voyage of three weeks by canoe up the Moose river and one of its tributaries. The trip he taken only in the summer months. It was such an arduous journey that Mr. Walton's visits to the outer world were infrequent. When Mr. Walton returned to this land, he was a well known and well earned fur trader, which he placed the needs of the Eskimos before many audiences in Ontario, he had no expectation of returning for years. The newspapers, however, recently announced that he had arrived in Toronto again, having covered the distance between Moose Fort and Cochrane by airplane in two, and a half hours. With close train connections he could have made the entire journey from Moose Fort to Toronto in less than twenty-four hours. This illustrates very forcibly man's conquest of the air. Canada's remotest outposts may be brought in future into almost immediate touch with the frontiers of settlement.

Immigration Scheme for Women Unsuccessful

It is reported that the British Government's scheme of offering free transportation to women who are willing to emigrate has been disappointing to some officials because, they say, the scheme has not brought forward enough of the right type of women. The scheme has evidently not been advertised enough, and is now being strongly propagated so that those willing to do the better of the matter, and to the advantage of it may be able to do so before December 31. ## THE RENTAL PROBLEM

Any immigrant who is allowed to come to Canada and make his home here should be granted every privilege of society, and not only granted such privileges, expected, and if possible influenced, to become a citizen in every sense of the word. It would seem that to foster the immigration of any class of foreigners for strictly commercial purposes is sowing to the wind, and will in time reap the whirlwind or something ten times worse. Various lines of commercial undertakings may be developed more expeditiously by the whole sale importation of foreign labor, but we must remember that the laborer today (even though apparently ignorant and illiterate) is a thinking and studying individual and harbors in his makeup certain ideas of national rights and individual ambitions. Take Canadians, for example, where is the Canadian who would think of emigrating to a foreign land, expecting to entirely transplant himself to his newly chosen field and at the same time know and feel that he must always occupy a servile and submissive attitude toward the natives of his adopted clime, and never be able to exercise any of all of his inherent rights and privileges which he had been endowed in his native abode? Not one Canadian would be willing to tolerate all his life such a condition, and would expect one day or another to escape from such a bondage, either by a change of conditions in the way of political and social reform of his surroundings, or eventual return to his native or some other land where conditions would be more congenial. If the lawmakers of Canada think that the celestial immigrant to Canada (and the U.S.) are content with the restrictions placed upon them in various ways, we believe these law-making bodies are deceiving themselves. Perhaps the state of California gives us the best insight into the phase of immigration at the present time, in connection with the Japanese, who are restricted in many ways in that section of Republic. In fact the attitude of California toward these immigrants is giving the Washington government no small concern, and unless properly and carefully handled will bring about serious consequences, as the Japanese nation is becoming so strong commercially and numerically as to be formidable. Perhaps the intermingling of nationalities is a problem that only time itself will solve, but unless one professes to be intensely altruistic it would not seem wise to grant any foreigners who do not pretend nor intend to adopt Canadian methods and standards of civilization full rights of Canadian citizenship, and not being able to do so, it would seem the part of expediency to discourage and if possible to prohibit their immigration to our domains, and live up to the slogan of "Canada for Canadian."

INCREASED COSTS AGAIN

We do not want to harp up on the subject of increased costs until the topic is worn threadbare. In fact the daily announcement of drops in the cost of various commodities which we need to keep body and soul together give one a needed and long overdue respite from the fearfully annoying problems of existence to say nothing of living. But we cannot refrain from referring to the frequency with which various publications (magazines, weeklies and dailies) are suspending publication. The same reason attached to the suspension of every periodical that has come to our notice, is given, viz: increasing costs that more than outweigh the return. Journalism, or rather the publishing business, is undergoing a tremendous test for existence and all as it may be bespeak those who profess to be leading lights in the editorial realm, the present state of affairs has thrown down the challenge to every person and every firm in the publishing business to make the business pay or get out of it. Not only that but there is such an excessive demand for paper over the production that the printing concern which can pay most for the material and outbid the other fellow wins, while the man who cannot afford to pay the higher prices or must have credit, even to reasonable extent, is forced out of business. We believe, taking the pulp-producing end of the business into consideration, that the day of the small weekly and rural magazine is past, as is also the day of two or more small dailies operating in the same field and to a great extent duplicating the news, matter of contemporaneous publications day after day. When one considers the economic waste of two or three morning dailies using up hundreds of tons of white paper to tell the public the same story it is a wonder that the very foolishness of the thing has not long before this caused its termination. But aside from the material end of the problem of publishing there is the problem of labor, and the time has come when it is not possible nor sensible for every little town and cross roads post-office to maintain a weekly newspaper, (that is a publishing and print-office maintaining its own plant.) Years ago the ready print or patent inside system came to the rescue of many a country weekly, which secured, often times six-eighths of its matter ready printed from a metropolitan ready-print house. In these ready prints (which the reader may see by looking at the reverse side of this very page) identically the same reading matter is printed for hundreds of weekly newspapers. And people have come to accept this sort of thing as a matter of course and few business men there are who will say to a weekly publisher "We want an all home print paper and will support it accordingly no matter what it costs." Business men in general and the rest of the world too seem to say: "Give us something that has the appearance of equalling our rivals, but make it just as cheap as possible." The problem resolves itself down to one of economical necessity, and no publisher or editor can longer remain in the business simply because he likes it, nor because he feels convinced that he is "filling a long felt want" in the community, unless he is able also to pay the paper—and the printers these days are the people who set type, operate the printing presses, produce coal or gasoline for power ink, paper etc. However, it need not be feared that the publishing business will become decadent and that lack of competition will cause the newspapers to drop into disrepute any further than politics and business existence has already driven them. In some cases of course certain publications may fall into the hands of the interests who will use them to the very hilt for commercial advantage and propaganda but it does not seem likely that the world will become worse for the lack of any publications who are forced out of existence because they cannot pay their way and meet expenses.

FARMERS ARE WARNED.

Information has come to the U. F. A. Central Office that some unauthorised persons are soliciting contributions for the big Membership Drive that is being planned. A report came in over the phone from the Staveland district that some one was at work in that district collecting contributions to the drive, unknown to the official workers.

The U. F. A. Central Office would like to warn farmers that anybody who is authorised to solicit contributions in connection with this drive is supplied with official receipt books, and that every canvasser has a written authorisation from the District Captain, who is usually one of the best known men in the district; so that there should be no difficulty in promptly ascertaining whether or not a canvasser is bona fide, if there is any doubt in the matter.

ELITE THEATRE

BOOKS BIG EXTRA
NAZIMOVA FEATURE

Nazimova, the star, is the greatest artist of the screen and stage.

The story is a picture of Edith Wherry's famous and greatest novel, "The Red Lantern."

Millions of people have read it and all who read it will want to see the supreme Nazimova in the screen version.

...$25,000 was spent to make the production superior in every way.

The regal robes worn by Nazimova are alone valued at $50,000.

1500 persons appear in the picture, headed by a cast of national time and distinction.

Eighteen huge sets, spread over six acres of ground, were built for the exterior scenes.

Pekin streets, lined with shops, dwellings, shrines and temples of the Chinese, together with the palace of Dowager Empress and a section of the Great Wall, of China; the American Mission, with its beautiful garden, fountains, pools, shrubbery and leafy borders under pergolas are among the sets.

Miles of California redwood and ash were used to make Chinese gargoyles, dragon heads and fantastic designs for the houses of worship and abode reproduced
for the picture.

The Dramatic episodes of the Boxer uprising are enacted with historical verity.

The burning of the Legation house of the Allied nations is shown, followed by the street battles between the Allies and the Boxers. Real Chinese men women and children, to the number of 800, were employed for these scenes.

Sixteen cameramen were used to take the scenes

A colossal statue of the Chinese Goddess of Peace, measuring 22
feet in height and 6 feet in breadth was built by Victor Andre, the world famous sculptor, especially
for the picture.

Every incident, every costume,
every racial habit or prejudice depicted in the production has the absolute stamp of historical and ethnological authenticity.

The famous "dragon room"—
the Emperor's throne room in old Pekin—is faithfully reproduced to the last detail, with its massive onyx pillars, carved throne inlaid
with wrought filigree and dragons.

New and spectacular lighting effects are among the multitude of extraordinary features of the production.

The big street scenes were taken at night and thousands of lamps were used to insure absolute accuracy and artistry.

Nazimova appears as a blonde for the first time in her career. She in reality enacts a triple role, that of a Eurasian girl, half English and half Chinese, and an English society girl.

MADE PROGRESS

IN PAST YEAR

"The nursing profession is entitled to the same rights and powers as those which attach to other professions, including those of medicine and law, and a sympathetic hearing will be given to any appeal for such legislation which may be brought before the ministry of health but I would ask the profession not so to tighten the strings as to shut out desirable people and so reach to the disadvantage of the province."

This statement was made by Hon. R. Mitchell, minister of public health, at the Alberta Hospital convention at Calgary last week Dr. H. M. Torg, president of the Alberta University, discussing the standard of training for nurses, said he was not afraid that it would be set too high. The danger to be guarded against was lest the spirit of public service in the profession should fail to reach the highest standard, "and it cannot be too high," he added
"for the work the nurses have to do." Dr. Torg said the day of close corporations in any profession
had gone.

Lieutenant Governor Brett in congratulating the members of the Registered Nurses' and Hospital associations on the deep interest in hospital problems, which has been shown in the discussions of the week, expressed gratification that, following the establishment of hospitals in the larger centers, the provision of nursing services in the outlying settlement of Alberta has lately been undertaken.

Mrs. Russell, president of the women's Canadian Education society, discussed "the hospital from the lay woman's standpoint."

The manner in which governmental expenditure on public health has increased during recent years was outlined by Dr.
Mitchell in an address in which he anticipated still further increase,
and declared that the province
should be proud of its expenditure under his head. From $127,000 in 1915 the outlay on health service has grown to $900,000, provided for in the appropriation of the present year.

CLEANLINESS IS HEALTH

By the use of Gillett's Lye, house cleaning is made a pleasure instead of a drudgery. It softens the water and cleans thoroughly whether the dirt is visible or invisible. Destroys all bacteria and infectious germs, removes obstructions from drain pipes, closets, sinks, etc. Refrigerators are made delightfully fresh and clean by using one teaspoonful of Gillett's Lye dissolved in two gallons of water.

Tales of Our Own Country

SOME CHRONICLES OF THE DAYS OF THE WAR PARTY AND THE BUFFALO
STORIES TOLD AROUND THE FIRES OF THE HUNTING CAMPS OF BYGONE DAYS

WORK OF THE POLICE AMONG THE ESQUIMAUX—THE RADFORD AND STREET TRAGEDY—A MISUNDERSTANDING—SUPERINTENDENT FRENCH AND AN EXPEDITION FOLLOW THE TRAIL INTO THE ARCTIC.

The settlement of the prairie country and the organization of municipalities of course relieved the members of the N.W.M.P. of some of their multifarious duties and enabled them to devote themselves to necessary work on the outskirts of civilization in the more remote portions of the Great Lone Land. The work which they undertook to perform in the Yukon was heroic and essential. Expeditions were undertaken along the barren shores of the Hudson Bay to the edge of the Arctic Sea, information gained and work performed amongst the remote tribes of the Indians and Esquimaux.

In 1912 occurred what is known as the Radford and Street tragedy. Two men, one of whom was named Radford, an American who had done some exploring in the interests of natural history, accompanied by T. G. Street, a young Canadian, left for the far north. They wandered in the solitudes and early in the year succeeded in reaching the shores of Bathurst Inlet, intending to proceed along the edge of the Arctic Sea to Fort McPherson, near which whaling vessels beset by ice sometimes wandered. They had brought with them to Bathurst Inlet some Esquimaux guides and when they reached that remote place they fell in with another tribe of Esquimaux, who apparently had seldom, if ever, seen a white man. The natives of the interior were afraid of the North Esquimaux and turned back leaving the two white men alone, except for the wild natives of the region. For a time these men were swallowed up in the wilderness and more than a year passed before any news was received of them. In June, 1913, one of the Esquimaux who had guided Radford and Street to Bathurst Inlet reported to Mr. Hall, the manager of the Hudson Bay trading post at Chesterfield Inlet, that he believed both men had been murdered by the Bathurst Inlet Esquimaux. This Esquimaux stated he had parted from Mr. Radford at Bathurst Inlet, but had not immediately returned to his own people. He had taken a fancy to a girl of the country and had remained in the vicinity for some time. It appeared that Mr. Radford had engaged two of the Bathurst Esquimaux to guide him to a whale ship that was beset by the ice some sixty miles away at Point Barrow. All preparations were made for the journey, but at the last moment the guides refused to proceed. The dogs were hitched up, the goods were packed on the sleighs, but the Eskimos sullenly refused to start. Exasperated, Mr. Radford went up to the men supposed to guide him, and finding him obdurate, struck him with the handle of a whip. A struggle ensued, and another Eskimo ran up and harpooned the white man through the back with a sealing spear. Mr. Street who was at some little distance saw the tragedy and rushed to the sleigh to obtain his rifle, but the Esquimaux surrounded him and stabbed him to death. Radford, who was a strong, vigorous man, put up a stubborn fight before he was eventually mastered. He refused to give in despite the fact that he had received many wounds from the spear, but after he fell to the ground the Esquimaux cut his throat. It seemed that the guide who refused to accompany Mr. Radford was giving an explanation in his own tongue that as his wife had been suddenly taken sick he could not proceed. Radford, who had an imperfect knowledge of the Esquimaux language, misunderstood him, hence the tragedy. The district where the murder occurred is a very inaccessible one, and it was recognized that it would be difficult to investigate the whole affair. The matter was turned over to the R. N.W.M.P. and preparations made to handle it.

It takes a long time for news to filter out from these remote Arctic hinterlands to civilization, but persistent rumors began to reach Hudson Bay posts of the murder of these two men and the officers of the headquarters of the N.W.M.P. started themselves to find out the particulars of the tragedy and if possible bring the guilty parties to justice. Superintendent Starnes in command of the northern district estimated that it would take an expedition of police at least two years to investigate the tragedy. Inspector Beys, with one non-commissioned officer, three constables and an interpreter undertook the work in 1914.

The expedition sailed in July from Halifax on a schooner purchased for the purpose. The weather was very bad and the party did not reach the Hudson's Bay Coast until too late in the season to proceed north along the coast. In 1915 an advance post was established at Baker Lake as the base of supplies. During the winter of 1915-1916 Inspector Beys made two attempts to make the journey from Baker Lake to Bathurst Inlet, but they could not be carried through owing to the scarcity of deer in that region. In 1916 Inspector F. H. French, the son of fighting Jack French, who met his death at Batoche by a rebel bullet in 1885 relieved Inspector Beys in command of the party. Mr. French immediately proceeded to establish depots across the wilderness. For a portion of the journey they had a native guide, but he abandoned them in a strange country and they had to pick their way through the wilderness by means of a compass. The expedition came out on the Arctic coast on the night of May 7, near Ellis river. During May they were held up by several blizzards, but towards the end of the month the weather became warmer. They eventually came on a large Esqui-

SOME OF THE SORROWS WHICH THE WAR IMPOSED ON A WAITING WOMAN

A Strange Dream

Albert lay quiet for a few minutes and then in a quiet, dreamy voice said: "I was in such a lovely country, where there was no cold, no snow, just a beautiful mild climate, neither too hot nor too cold; there were many trees and sweet smelling flowers and the citizens of the country were all happy. 'And Lucy,' he continued holding my hand more closely. 'There was no more sea, no wars, no prisons—I could feel him shudder as he said this, 'and there was no struggle, no struggle, to keep up when one didn't feel like it,' and as I sat there, a man in a beautiful white robe came to me and said, 'So you are to be one of us?' I replied 'No, no, I should like it, but I must stay down there where the pain and the sorrow is because of Lucy and Philip.' The man in the white robe looked at me and kindly said: 'Yes, yes, just like all the others who have lately come from the planet earth vexed and worried about little things, you are to take pleasure out of the present because of imaginary, or even real sorrows in the past and some in the future. Be not dismayed, your wife and little son although they will grieve for you will be well cared for and very happy, and it will not seem long, for a thousand years here but as day in that dark, earth-bound world from which you have come and in which you have seen so much sadness. And then, Lucy, I awoke to see you here and although I realize how much I love you and I know dearest that you love me, yet I feel in some manner there is a tangle in this life which will not be more complicated by my departure, but the skein will unwind, and I think dearest that you will yet have as much happiness as it is possible to expect in this fleeting existence. Don't grieve for me darling, don't grieve, that will only make it harder for you. I know I have failed in many ways lately—I have been so tired and life, outside of you and the child has seemed—such a futile struggle—and then, then those awful years, they have been seared into my Face Was Badly Disfigured. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

"Small red pimples and blackheads began on my face and my face was badly disfigured. Some of the pimples festered while others scaled over and there were places where the pimples were in blisters. They used to itch and burn terribly. I saw an advertisement for Cuticura and tried them. They stopped the itching and burning and I used four cakes of Soap and three boxes of Ointment which healed me." (Signed) Miss V. A. Hayes, Stormont, N. S., Dec. 25, '18.

"One Notion of Heaven"

The Lover says, "Just thee 'and THOU!" He says, "You can cut out all the rest of that measure about the 'book of verses'—though I do like verses I only think about Love and am not in it, all about the 'book of bread'—for somehow I'm not hungry! all about the 'jug' even—funny, but I have a fright indifference about the wet and dry question, and I used to be interested from a point of the principle of the thing, and I talked about free countries and thus and so. Only two things I need in my Heaven—Old Dan—half asleep—our pal, our friend—fish—fish for more dreams—'and THOU!"

"There are other things that might go to make my Heaven. Just a still Summer day and the wilderness and idle hours—they help. And they are not much to ask. Beside the of Jasper walls, golden streets, sorrowless, dusky hours, rivers of milk and honey, and radiant wings, just a girl and a tree and a stream and the ordinary pace of an earthly Summer day are little to ask—so little. But it's Heaven—my notion of Heaven—so long as thou'rt in it—sweet!"

Weekly Budget For Working Girls Is Placed At $25.00

That the United Farm Women Association, as far as the Calgary local is concerned, would be willing that farm help come under Factories Act was brought out in the evidence given by Mrs. L. Y. McKinney, M.L.A., before a recent sitting of the Minimum Wage Commission. Mrs. McKinney, accompanied by Mrs. Wright, both members of the Calgary local, appeared before the board to present the budget prepared by the United Farm Women Association in defense of an increased minimum wage in this province. In dealing with the United Farm Women Association budget which figured a weekly expenditure of $25.59.

Who Is Responsible?

Mrs. McKinney said she would agree with the commission in anything they might say of the budget. She would concede that it was outrageous and ridiculously high, but who was responsible? Not the poor girl who had to pay for things at the present prices. If she tried to cut down on this budget where would she begin? With the room rent first? She would probably go into a cheap room where the surroundings and association would bemire her good name. Next she would cut down on food and endanger her health and working capacity, but she could never afford to cut down on dress, as her personal appearance was what counted most with her employer.

"She'll economize in nourishment, in dentists, doctors and occult bills and her hard working little body will be uncared for, yet she is that potential mother of our people," concluded Mrs. McKinney.

brain and conscience and I can never forget—so dearest I think the future holds for us both something better than we have yet known. I know you hate me to think about it during, but it is well to prepare—I have left all the papers in connection with my insurance, in the little drawer in the secretary where you will easily find them. Thank God everything is in order, and thank God that I had taken out so much insurance before the war so that I need not dread you will feel the pinch of want."

"Don't Albert, I sobber. 'I am so unworthy of your love.' There, there little woman," he soothed me, "Do not make it harder for me, because I know you love me, I know." He fell back on his pillow and I flew wildly to the telephone, and called the doctor. But it was too late for earthly succour. Albert had followed his mother to that 'Better Land' of which he had been dreaming—and I was left with my boy and my breaking heart.

There main reason why you buy a tractor is to produce greater crops at a larger profit. And the tractor that will do the work at the least cost is the tractor you want—provided of course that it has the strength and durability to give it long life.

Above we illustrate a comparison of operating costs based upon actual official public tests. We take as an example an official demonstration in which were entered 20 of the best known tractors. In making the comparison, we have, however, considered only the 25 tractors entered as gasoline burners, eliminating the five gasoline engines, and as a basis have taken the average cost for an acre plowed. On the one hand, the OIPull plowed at a cost of 45 cents per acre—on the other the average cost of the 23 competing tractors was 65.27 cents per acre.

This gives the OIPull an advantage of almost one-third—or in other words, the OIPull proved that it is capable of doing one-third more work for the same fuel cost. And remember that we compare the OIPull with the so-called gasoline tractors only. Compared with gasoline tractors the OIPull will cut fuel costs in half.

STERILITY IN CATTLE

(Experimental Farm Notes)

While the above subject is one to be treated by the veterinary pathologist, there are certain suggestions possible from the practical stockman. Briefly, failure to breed in the case of dairy cattle is a condition of late and early, in general, and regarded by many as a manifestation of malign Providence. The less of occasional individuals from the herd is looked upon as simply another case of the many factors that contribute toward the high cost of milk production. However, research and careful study have combined to throw much light on the question.

Popular Ideas As to Sterility

When a cow returns for service regularly the bull is frequently looked upon with suspicion, particularly if there are several other cases in the herd. If the bull is above reproach, the cow is either "hard to catch," had too large a calf last time, "got hurt when she fell on the ice," or last and nearest "has gone wrong inside." Coming nearer to the definite cause of sterility, one of the most popular diagnoses in the past has been that of mechanical inability of conception, or closure of the os uteri—the passage between the vagina and the uterus. Various forms of dilators and plugs have been recommended and while these may undoubtedly have their use, the fact remains that investigators have practically concluded that the percentage of sterile cases so caused by mechanical means, is relatively small and that the real causes are much more involved as to origin and treatment. The os uteri of the farrow cow is normally closed and the passage tortuous and twisted. The amateur explorer is naturally struck by this, to him, abnormal state, and he proceeds to dilate. In short, abnormalities whether from birth or of later origin, undoubtedly cause sterility but these cases are comparatively few. The man who has one or two non-breeders in his herd should resort to the services of a skilled veterinarian and be guided by his diagnosis; the man however who finds numerous cases in his herd has a serious problem on his hands.

On the bank of the $240 saved by the OIPull in plowing 22 acres, you can easily figure the saving in operating costs in the day after day, year after year operation. You can see that the saving is not alone with practically pay for the outfit while your OIPull is still a young machine. We can't say just what the life of an OIPull is because the first come built over ten years ago are still on the job.

Furthermore, what the OIPull has done in these public tests is what it is doing in the hands of private owners. The OIPull will plow at a cost of ground at less cost than any tractor made—bar none.

And not only has the OIPull proved this economy—it makes give you an absolute guarantee in writing that it will burn successfully all grades of known fuels under all conditions, and at all loads to its full rated brake horse power. The OIPull is the only tractor that carries such a written guarantee.

Four sizes of the oil burning oil cooled OIPull can now be had—12, 20, 26, 30, 35-40 and 45-50 H. P.—all standard in design.

The Dangerous Kind of Sterility
First, let it be pointed out that the potency of the herd sire is proven. Many bulls are undoubtedly poor "getters." Nine times out of ten they have been made so by lack of exercise, injudicious feeding, or overwork and too young. The congenitally sterile bull is very infrequently found. Absolving the bull from blame, the following conditions may be found in the herd.

1—Cows returning to service regularly.
2—Cows returning to service irregularly.
3—Cows failing to show oestrus.
4—Cows showing vaginal discharge regularly or at intervals (such cases do not as a rule come in oestrus).
5—Cows that may or may not come in oestrus but that exhibit male characteristics—raring and pawing the ground after the fashion of bulls. Such cases, where of considerable standing, are usually to be detected by a marked elevation of the tail and head, and by a falling away of the broad ligaments. They are known technically as "nymphomaniacs" and undoubtedly deserve this severe name. It must be stated too that cows are occasionally sterile due to temporary bodily disturbances. Should the foregoing include or describe several individuals in the herd, the owner may ask himself whether his herd has ever been affected with contagious oestrus or an apparent epidemic of retained afterbirth. If so he may conclude that his herd is still affected by this disease, which has many ways of causing the cows to become chronically sterile.

Any attempt to describe treatment is useless until the definite cause of the trouble is located; in most cases a few special forceps catheters and dilators are the best. Moreover, one of two treatments are entirely useless as a rule, and it is to insufficient treatment that failure of success is frequently blamed.

Treatment consists usually of simple douching with mild antiseptics suitable for uterine conditions; although in certain cases manipulation and massaging are necessary. To ensure complete success any treatment must be persistent.

The correction of sterility in cattle is no simple matter, and unless evidence takes a hand there is no asit way.

MACHINERY NEEDS CAREFUL TREATMENT

Do not merely go through the motions of oiling machinery, but, before doing so, first list the repairs needed for next season and secure them along with an assortment of bolts, rivets, springs, etc. in time to have them implemented. "Retired" and ready for use on time. An implement in repair at all times will have a longer life and will give more satisfactory service during its life than equipment requiring irregular attention. Secondly, clean and oil each machine and give all polished surfaces an application of some anti-rust preparation. Axle grease or other lubricant will answer the purpose.

$50,000,000 WORTH CATTLE EXPORTED

Cattlemen on the Western Canadian ranches are reported to be seriously concerned over the uncertainty facing the export of cattle on the hoof of the United States. They fear that after the coming elections a tariff wall may be erected against the importation of stockers and feeders from the Dominion year the last time the value of the animals exported was roundly $50,000,000. This has been a growing trade since 1910 when 158,000 cattle were shipped over the line. In 1919, the total had risen to 342,000 and for the fiscal year ending March last, the figure was $16,000,000.

But there is a renaissance forth coming, Canadian packers realize the seriousness of any threatened curtailment of livestock production and believe that if a tariff contingency had to be met they could fully take care of all the cattle that can be raised if two conditions are fulfilled. The "scrub" bull must go so as to raise the general quality of our beef and stock-raisers must provide a steadier supply than in the past. These two factors are the main drawbacks to the development of an export trade in beef similar to that which has proved for 25 years the mainstay of our bacon industry.

During 1919, out of 698, 849 cattle marketed at stockyards for home slaughter, 359,418 were "good" and 339,431 graded "common." That is, 48.5 per cent graded "common."

With so much unsuitable material to hamper, an export market cannot yet be established to compete with the high class beef from Argentina and Australia. But if quality is improved and supply well regulated, packers, emphatically assure stock-breeders, and this applies to east and west—of a readiness to aid in opening and building up a valuable market for all beef animals bred on Canadian farms.

THE MILKING OF COWS

Shall cows be milked twice or three times a day? To the average reader this may seem of small concern. To the farmer and dairymen it is a question of considerable interest. Tests have recently been made in Nova Scotia, Quebec, and Ontario. Professor Barton of Macdonald College says that it has been found from the standpoint of economy and safety that a cow giving 60 lbs of milk a day should be milked three times. Both Professor Thomas of the Nova Scotia Agricultural College and Professor Barton are agreed, however, that unless the udder is over distended there is little or no advantage to be gained by milking three times a day. These authorities are quoted in the September number of the Agricultural Gazette of Canada. Professor Wazee Toole also contributed to a solution of the same problem by giving results of tests made at the Ontario Agricultural College. The tests are to be continued and Professor Toole hopes to be able to give a more definite opinion another year when he does at present.

In the meantime he shows that three high-class pure-bred cows gave more by three than by twice milking a day. His present conclusions however are the same as those of Professors Barton and Trueman.
